A Message from the Executive Director

The California State Board of Equalization (BOE) is proud to continue the BOE Mentoring Program which is a component of the third goal of the 2010-2015 BOE Strategic Plan: "Invest in a Skilled, Motivated, and Diverse Workforce." The BOE Mentoring Program will assist us in achieving that goal by creating a learning partnership between mentors and mentees to enhance skill sets and assist with the professional growth and development of BOE employees.

Mentoring can play a decisive role in how our employees gain knowledge, develop as leaders, and accomplish great things for the State of California. Mentors can enable our agency to cultivate and retain a highly skilled and motivated workforce. A mentor can help our employees reach their full potential in building successful careers and contributing to the vital work we do.

Since this program is tied to workforce and succession planning, the BOE will benefit by developing staff from within the organization who will work toward the common goals of the agency. The BOE Mentoring Program will assist in strengthening the BOE core values and create a stronger workforce. The benefits of having a mentor program will influence many others in years to come.

I am privileged to lead an organization that unites diverse individuals and departments in one purposeful mission. I salute the mentor volunteers who are willingly to share their time, resources, and support.

On behalf of the California State Board of Equalization, my sincere thanks to our many supporters. Your invaluable contributions truly touch the future.

Warmest Regards,

Introduction

Defining the BOE Mentoring Program

Mentoring is a professional relationship in which an experienced person (the mentor) assists another person (the mentee) in developing specific skills and knowledge that will enhance the less experienced person's professional growth.

The BOE recognizes that a key component to career development is the transfer of knowledge and experience between employees. The mentor program will provide a systematic approach for employees to enhance the development of leadership and professional skills while fulfilling their career paths.

The BOE Mentoring Program will provide guidance and specific objectives to ensure that all of the critical components of the mentoring process are met for all participants. This program is designed to assist career and skill development in participants by transfer of knowledge and experience as well as activities to further enhance the skill building process.

The BOE Mentoring Program will allow the mentees to gain knowledge resulting from one-on-one relationships with mentors. In this capacity, the mentor may give the mentee assignments to further build the mentee's skill set.

WE MAKE A LIVING BY WHAT WE GET;

Characteristics of Successful Mentoring Relationships

The key characteristic of a successful mentoring relationship includes having a mentor and mentee that are both open and willing to accept change. Mentoring is a two-way relationship; both mentors and mentees should experience benefits. Often the role of mentor and mentee will change as the relationship develops. Mentors should view a mentoring relationship as both an opportunity to teach mentees and to learn from them. This relationship is built on trust, open communication, and respect.

A successful mentoring relationship allows individuals the ability to gain personal and professional growth. It is important for all participating individuals to be committed to the relationship and professional development of the mentee.

A successful mentoring relationship requires that the individuals be capable of confronting and constructively resolving conflicts. The mentee will need the ability to accept feedback to ensure development. A mentee is not expected to accept the mentor’s advice without questioning it. By questioning beliefs, assumptions, and past practices, the mentee will understand values and determine validity. The mentee is given an opportunity to learn and grow from the mentor by being exposed to mistakes and successes.

All mentoring relationships evolve and change with time. As time passes, the needs and goals of the mentee may change. As the mentee grows and completes set goals, the mentor may identify new challenges for the mentee that further enhance the mentee’s development and professional growth.

Mentor

What is a Mentor?

The BOE defines a mentor as someone who imparts wisdom to and shares knowledge with a less-experienced colleague. The mentor's knowledge, experience, and skills based on their personal life experience may provide the mentee guidance, advice, and hands-on training to build the required competencies for professional growth and development. The mentor may share information about his or her own career path, and provide guidance, motivation, and role modeling. A mentor will assist the mentee with setting and achieving goals, networking, and identifying resources in moving forward down the career path.

Six roles of a mentor:

Guide: The mentor guides the mentee by providing specialized knowledge that leads the mentee through skill enhancement and development. The mentor listens actively to the mentee to demonstrate respect and encourages the mentee to develop problem-solving skills by having the mentee demonstrate how she or he would attempt to solve the problem. The mentor offers guidance by demonstrating or sharing an approach to solve the problem.

Motivator: The mentor will motivate the mentee through encouragement and support. The mentor can also motivate the mentee by utilizing assignments. The assignments can be those described in brochures and handouts provided by Workforce Planning (WFP). The material and/or mentoring ideas given by WFP is not required, rather informational and suggested only. The mentor and mentee may also agree upon other assignments that will further assist in the professional development of the mentee.

Sponsor: As a sponsor, the mentor may present and create opportunities to assist the mentee with developing networks and establishing resources. This can be done by making recommendations of relevant resources and introducing the mentee to the knowledge required within their department as well as introducing the mentee to other BOE employees, as appropriate.

Coach: The mentor provides positive and constructive feedback. Positive feedback increases self-esteem and provides a sense of accomplishment. It is important that feedback be frequent and directly linked to an observation made by the mentor.

Advisor: The mentor advises and assists with setting realistic career goals that have a reasonable time frame and relevant outcome based on the mentee's promotional pattern interest.

Role Model: The mentor acts as a role model for the mentee by demonstrating behaviors that can be emulated by the mentee. The mentee's sessions should be kept confidential, to ensure trust and communication. The mentor displays interactions with others, advises how to handle certain situations, and provides an example of values, ethics, and professional practices considered important for self development.

Getting Started as a Mentor

At the beginning of the mentoring relationship, the focus is on getting to know each other. The introductory period is important for building trust in the relationship and developing an understanding of one another.

The introductory phase will start at the kick-off meeting where you will meet for the first time—a good time to spend a few minutes getting to know one another, and scheduling your first mentoring meeting.

First meeting steps:

- Complete the BOE Mentoring Program Agreement
- Identify your individual expectations for participating in the program
- Obtain information on the mentee's job experience, and share your career history
- Identify the mentee's short and long term goals
- Set the ground rules for the mentoring relationship; for example,
  - Tentative re-occurring meeting schedule and location
  - Best ways to communicate between meetings
  - Protocol for canceling a scheduled meeting
  - Being timely and prepared for the meetings

Get to know one another and keep it fun!

- Enthusiasm
- Positive Attitude
- Sincerity

—JOHN CROSBY

How to be a Good Mentor

There is not a specific “correct” way to be a good mentor. Every mentoring relationship is different, and the goals and expectations will vary depending on the individuals. Here are tips to help guide you:

- Be yourself
- Listen to your mentee and then share your knowledge that relates to their wants and needs
- Learn what is important to your mentee by asking questions
- Understand their expectations
- Focus your mentoring approach to meet the needs of your mentee. If your mentee is not clear on their career goals, assist in exploring options and developing a career path. Encourage them to make a plan, put it into action, and follow through.
- If your mentee needs help with self-confidence, then that could be an area that you assist in developing
- Reflect on your experiences. Were there mentors that helped develop your career? If so, what methods did they use, and were they successful?
- Understand that good relationships take time to develop
- Ask powerful questions and provide insight, if needed
- Be empathetic to any issues that your mentee may be addressing, but stay neutral and do not get caught up in the issues
- Understand your own personal vision and goals
- Maintain and respect privacy, honesty, and integrity
- Ask the mentee to express thoughts, ideas, and concerns
- Remember to be positive

Discussions and Activities

The mentoring relationship will be based on your own personal style and personal expectations. Below are ideas on topics to discuss and activities in which to engage with your mentee.

Questions to ask:

- Why did you decide to participate in the BOE Mentoring Program?
- What do you hope to get out of participating in the program?
- What are your worries, frustrations, or concerns at work?
- What career options do you wish to pursue?
- What excites you about your job?
- What does success look like for you?
- What are your goals for your current position?
- Is there a problem you would like to work on?
  - Why is it a problem?
  - What are some possible ways to resolve the problem?

Activities to engage in:

- Share your own experiences, successes, failures, and observations
- Introduce your mentee to other managers to help them network
- Bring the mentee to appropriate meetings with you, demonstrate how you conduct meetings
- Work with your mentee to identify his or her strengths and weaknesses, then identify a plan of action to address those weaknesses
- Share books or articles relating to the mentee's development
- Help mentee identify professional development opportunities
- Work on brainstorming solutions for current challenges the mentee is facing
- Role play to resolve a difficult situation
- Ask your mentee to teach you something
- Check in on your mentee and see how they are doing
- Discuss work and personal life balance
- Make the meeting fun, enjoy your time together
- Discuss "assignments" that can build your mentee's skills
- Refer to additional resources, such as looking for ideas together in the "75 Things to Do with Your Mentee" booklet

Mentee

“WE MUST OPEN THE DOORS OF OPPORTUNITY. BUT WE MUST ALSO EQUIP OUR PEOPLE TO WALK THROUGH THOSE DOORS.”

—LYNDON B. JOHNSON

Mentee Best Practices

It is a common misconception that the mentor provides advice and tells the mentee what to do. Actually, the mentee is an active participant, and defines the needed knowledge, skills, and abilities. It is essential that the mentee has a clear understanding of the goals and expectations so the mentor can assist the mentee with meeting them. In setting and defining these goals, it will help the mentoring relationship to stay on course.

To ensure success, the mentee must:

- Set out to achieve new skills and knowledge
- Seek guidance and advice for professional development
- Accept responsibility for decisions and actions
- Maintain confidentiality
- Carry out tasks and projects by agreed times
- Maintain trust and respect
- Attend all scheduled meetings
- Establish goals, objectives, and milestones required to achieve them
- Identify training to help meet goals

Mentee Best Practices

- Attend appointments with your mentor.
- Complete the BOE Mentoring Program Agreement.
- Discuss your individual expectations for participating in the program.
- Agree upon ground rules for your mentoring relationship:
  - How often will you meet, and for how long?
  - Are calls or emails between meetings acceptable?
  - What is the protocol for canceling a scheduled meeting?
  - Where are your meeting places?
- Prepare an agenda for your meetings.
- Discuss possible activities the mentor may provide you with to develop certain skills. If you accept an assignment, than complete it within the time frame determined by you and your mentor.
- Provide feedback to the mentor. This will assist your mentor in helping you.
- Listen to the information and guidance provided by your mentor. Don't focus on the reasons you can't, look for how you can.
- Conduct a self-analysis of your skill sets. Look at your last project and the areas that you experienced difficulty.
- Expect support from your mentor, not miracles. The mentor is there to provide guidance, act as a sounding board to help you determine how to handle situations and put things in perspective. The mentor is not there to solve your problems.
- Communicate clearly. It is important to effectively communicate your needs to your mentor.
- Be teachable. In order to be an effective mentee, you must be willing to learn new things, obtain new perspectives, and be responsive to constructive criticism.
- Show appreciation and share credit for accomplishments with your mentor.
- Remember, this is your professional development. Be proactive and take initiative. Take responsibility for its progress and the outcomes.
- Be sure to complete required criteria for graduation from the program.

DESTINY OR SOMEONE ELSE WILL.”
